

Abstract

A method of making an electrically operated programmable resistance memory element. A sidewall spacer is used as a mask to 5 form a raised portion of a conductive layer. A programmable resistance material is formed in electrical contact with the raised portion.

10